Election/Restrictions

1. Claims 21-35 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected method of forming a soft magnetic film, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in Paper No. 6.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Yoshizawa et al (US 4,985,089).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

6. Claims 8-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yoshizawa et al (US 4,985,089) in view of Cole et al (US 5,452,164).

Regarding claims 8-11, Yoshizawa et al do not show the soft magnetic film in a thin film head having upper and lower core layers, upper and lower pole layers, a pole portion between the lower and upper core layers including a gap layer, a coil layer on the gap layer with an insulating layer covering the coil layer. See Figure 5 of Cole et al.

Cole et al disclose a soft magnetic film in a thin film head being either upper and lower core layers (80, 81) or upper and lower pole layers (PT1b, PT2b). There is a pole portion (including PT1b, PT2b) between the lower and upper core layers including a gap layer (G), and there is a coil layer (108) on the gap layer with an insulating layer (I2) covering the coil layer. See Figure 5 of Cole et al.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have furnished the soft magnetic thin film layer as shown by Yoshizawa et al with the soft magnetic film in a thin film head having upper and lower core layers, upper and lower pole layers, a pole portion between the lower and upper core layers including a gap layer, a coil layer on the gap layer with an insulating layer covering the coil layer as taught by Cole et al. The rationale is as follows: one of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to have furnished the soft magnetic thin film layer as shown by Yoshizawa et al with the soft magnetic film in a thin film head having upper and lower core layers, upper and lower pole layers, a pole portion between the lower and upper core layers including a gap layer, a coil layer on the gap layer with an insulating layer covering the coil layer as taught by Cole et al in order to have eliminated flux leakage between the pole tips at the air bearing surface; column 3, lines 42-48 of Cole et al.

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 6-7 and 12-19 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
